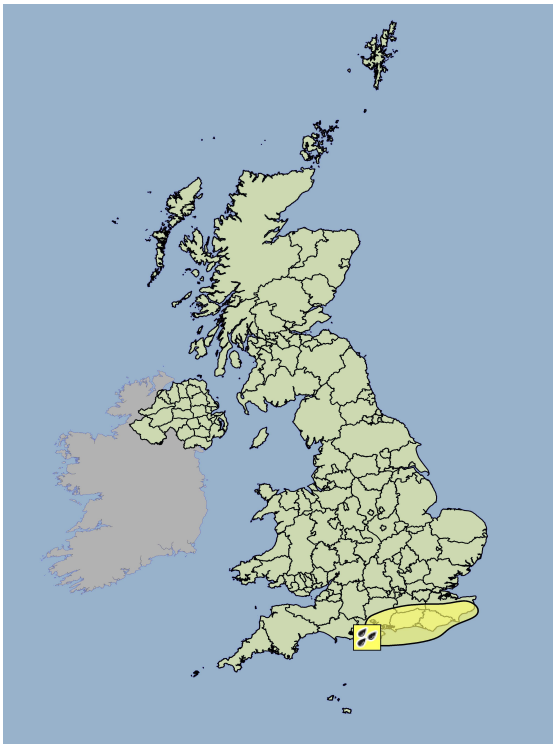
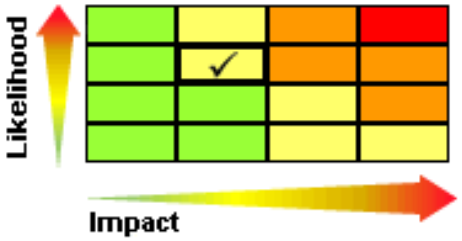
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A very unsettled start to the week is expected as an area of low pressure moves slowly southwards across Britain to most likely be centred near or over northwestern France by late Wednesday. Heavy showers forming over the English Channel on the southern flank of this area of low pressure will be driven into southern and southeastern England by brisk onshore winds on Monday and, more especially, on Tuesday.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Alert of Rain

Valid from 01:00 on Tue, 28th Jan 2014 until 23:00 on Tue, 28th Jan 2014

Frequent showers, some heavy, will bring a further 10-15 mm and locally up to 25 mm rain to parts of southern and southeastern England on Tuesday.

The public should be aware of the potential for disruption, especially where ground is already saturated.
